"L" STRIKE TALK LESS MENACING

Entire Situation Now Depends Upon Grand Chiefs Stone and Hannahan, Who Are Due Here
Some Time To-Day.

The determined stand taken by the officials of the Interborough Rapid Transit Company seems to have cooled the enthusiasm of the motormen and engineers on the "L" system somewhat regarding the strike question. Both sides now assert that they will use every effort to settle the difficulty amicably.
William L. Jencks, who is at the head of the local Motormen's Association, says the control of the situation will be put in the hands of Grand Chief Hannahan and a Grand officer who will be here to represent Grand Chief Stone, who is unable to come. "They are expected to arrive here some time during the day. If they decide the men shall submit to the order for an examination there will be no strike."
This decision was not arrived at since the announcement that Mr. Hedley would fill the places of the strikers within thirty minutes," said Mr. Jencks.
"That I think he would find an impossibility. We will not hesitate to strike if the grand chiefs advise such action and the company insists upon the observance of the new rule."
Vice-President Bryan, General Manager Hedley and Master Mechanic J. S.
Doyle held a conference at the office of the company in the Park Row Building, and it was said that Master Mechanic Doyle had advised the officials not to engage surface motormen in case of a strike.
All day yesterday at the One Hundred and Twenty-ninth street and Bronx Park stations of the Manhattan Elevated roads conductors were being drilled in handling motor cars, and beginning at midnight last night, they were running trains on the Second Avenue line to the Battery, while the regular motormen, who were not on duty, watched them.

An order was issued early in the day that the conductors not on duty should report at this rendezvous and begin receiving instructions in handling the motor cars.

At Broadway, it was said that there was nothing new to announce in the strike situation. Vice-President Bryan and Mr.
August Belmont were in conference for half an hour, but it was stated after the threatened strike had not been talked about.

RESERVES QUELL ITALIAN RIOT

Residents of Brooklyn Attacked Man from Manhattan Engaged to Unload a Vessel at Atlantic Docks.

Thirty Brooklyn Italians attacked an equal number of Manhattan Italians who had been employed to unload a cargo of cedar railroad ties from the bark San Turco at the Atlantic Docks to-day, and the reserves from the Hamilton avenue police station were required to quell the disturbance.
The Brooklyn men were angry because their countrymen from across the river were called over to do work which they believed should have been given to them.
When the Manhattan Italians went to work the Brooklyn delegation scampered over the side of the San Turco and with cotton-hooks, marlin spikes and iron bars commenced an assault on the invaders. Officers of the bark also took a hand in the battle, and then Capt. Fredericks came on deck and drew his revolver, threatening to shoot.
The fighters paid no attention to him and the reserves came from the station.
On their appearance the assailants leaped from the ship and made away, several of them leaving trails of blood after them. Several of the Manhattan Italians were also injured, but none seriously enough to necessitate sending them to a hospital.
